

“BECL have assisted us with a number of large scales, fast track commercial projects in both the U.K. and Ireland. They have always provided a courteous, professional service with a positive attitude. BECL have provided us with high quality, detailed electrical designs for a number of complex large commercial projects. The BECL team take great pride in their attention to detail and quality in both their designs and installations. We have found Nick and the team incredibly proactive with regards to value engineering, design analysis and problem solving. We have found that one of the key elements to successful fast track projects is to get like-minded sub-contractors on board who share our philosophy of delivering high levels of quality workmanship on projects where the challenges presented by aggressive programmes are ever present. BECL embrace this ethos.”
